(Special to The Evening World.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J., July 26.—Detectives in automobiles scouted all night walle a posse of farmers were on guard at the outskirts of the South Plainfield swamps to prevent the escape of Charles Long, the fugitive slayer of Mathew Cunningham, of Trenton. After a two-day chase about Piscataway Township, during which policemen re-peatedly unloaded their revolvers on him, Long hid himself in the swamps and is believed to be cornered.

Neither officers of the law nor farmers will venture in the underprush, fear. ing a bullet from the desperate man. The plan now is to starve him out, but no chances are being taken to permit his escape. Besidents of South Plainfield are in fear over the possibility of his suddenly appearing at some farm-house and dehe has not eaten for nearly & week. Chief Kiely and Roundsman Higgins, of the Plainfield force, drove the murderer into the swamp and the local policemen are still aiding the Trenton etectives in their effort to capture him

The anger of the farmers is thoroughly aroused and the police officers fear that they will take vengeance on the fugitive.

For this reason one automobile is n reserve, the plan being to rush from Honolulu. He brings news of a Long away the moment he is captured, fearful storm which swept over the Carolines in April last. # Specialists

It is concentration on a subject that increases knowledge. This is an age of specialists, and argue as one may, the general artisan, jack of all trades or general merchant cannot possibly compete successfully with the specialist.

For forty-five years the Sterling Company has concentrated all its knowledge, skill and business energy to producing a better instrument each year, and we say, without exaggeration, intended egotism or possibility of successful contradiction, that the general dealer cannot sell you a piano and sustain a guarantee of equal musical satisfaction for the same money that we can. When you purchase a Mendelssohn, a Huntington or a

you buy direct from its manufacturers. You get a guarantee that is permanent, for we as makers have a world-wide reputation to sustain and are more interested in keeping you a satisfied customer than any general dealer can possibly be who is selling one kind of piano to-day, and another kind, or the same kind under a different name and changed conditions, next week or next year.

These are facts that no sensational so-called "half price" advertising can possibly overcome and are of vital interest to any one who contemplates purchasing a piano that will give a sure, economical and life long musical satisfaction, instead of an expensive disappointment or dearly bought experience.
